

CONSUMER REMIMBURSEMENT AND REMUNERATION POLICY

BACKGROUND

---

Consumer representation across decision-making and program-related processes has been vital to ACTA's progress against its mission, and ACTA is committed to supporting active consumer involvement.

This Policy was developed with reference to similar policies across Australia. It is accepted best practice to provide financial acknowledgement for consumer representation and contribution. In addition to covering all out-of-pocket expenses, consumer payments should reflect the level of expertise, commitment and responsibility that the activity demands.

PURPOSE AND SCOPE

---

The Consumer Reimbursement and Remuneration Policy (Policy) builds on ACTA's commitment to involving consumers as part of its core business. ACTA recognises that travel and other expenses may be a barrier to consumer involvement and this Policy aims to address this barrier through:

- reimbursement for pre-approved and reasonable expenses incurred as a result of active participation in ACTA's activities; and
- participation payments that acknowledge the lived experience, time commitment, and significant contributions to ACTA's activities.

This Policy applies to any person who has been formally appointed as an ACTA consumer representative. The nature of consumer involvement may vary but could include:

- attendance in a focus group, workshop or consultation activity;
- consumer representation on a recruitment, selection or award judging panel;
- active involvement in the development of resources and publications;
- sharing of their lived experience of clinical trials and clinical quality registries to raise awareness, access and involvement;
- membership on the ACTA Board or an ACTA committee, including reference, steering and working groups.

This Policy does not cover:

- open invitation community forums or consultation events;
- participation in surveys;
- current ACTA employees;
- people funded to represent another external agency, organisation or group;
- any engagement activities or expenses that have not had prior approval from the ACTA CEO or their authorised delegate.

Schedule C: Classification criteria and remuneration schedule - Group C organisations (Section 3a) relates to advisory bodies to departments.
